Inter Faith Relations A shrinking world and the experience of immigration have brought us into contact with those of world faiths as never before. We now talk of neighbour religions and all of us are challenged. This course led by Johnston Mc Master of the Irish School of Ecumenics, will look at changing Ireland and what it means to dialogue with members of neighbour religions. There will be exploration of particular issues raised for Christians such as who is Jesus in a multi faith world and what is meant by mission. Ethical questions, not least that of peace in the world, will be explored in this global context. The course will be held in the Armagh Diocesan Pastoral Centre, Dundalk, beginning on Monday 19th January. For more information contact the Office of Pastoral Renewal and Family Ministry.
